WELCOME TO THE SAUK COUNTY FARM CONNECT GUIDE

This special listing ties together Wisconsin's largest industry - agriculture - with another of its top segments - tourism. You don't have to be a Sauk County visitor to locate area farmers who directly market their products to discerning consumers - everyone is welcome to shop at these local agribusinesses and, in the process, put more money into the pockets of the area's family farms.

Many consumers are now three to five generations removed from their agricultural roots. This guide helps reconnect people with the source of their food and fiber. By visiting these unique places and buying their products, consumers have a great opportunity to learn firsthand about agriculture today, the environmental care, respect practiced, attention to detail and quality of production.

Sauk County draws strength from its deep agricultural roots. Enjoy our rich heritage of diverse farms, classic barns, silos and windmills, and the exceptional beauty of our rural countryside.

Loganville, WI 53943
608-727-5647

We are a local licensed producer and supplier of sweet sorghum syrup. Sweet sorghum is a 100% natural sweet syrup derived from sorghum cane. Sorghum is most commonly used to add nutrition and a unique flavor to foods. Sorghum syrup is high in antioxidants, calcium, iron and potassium. Currently, David Schlieckau and his family continue the four generation tradition and process the syrup the old-fashioned way over a wood fire. Sorghum is available in quarts, pints and half-pints year round at local businesses and at his home. Actual cooking of the sorghum cane takes place approximately from September until the middle of October depending on frost. Visitors are always welcome!

Poultry and seafood are also available in our fresh or frozen cases. "Attitude is everything" is a belief the Wytttenbach family has always held. This belief was further embraced as their idea for a meat market materialized, allowing them to sell their farm-raised Angus beef directly to the consumer. This Sauk County family enthusiastically opened Wytttenbach Meats for business in April, 2002. Stop in and "Meat the Best™."
